Tip If you are working on a Mac and you turn on the "Always open in Full Screen" option in the preferences, then you won't see anything other than the workspace. To go back to the default behavior, click on the icon at the left side of the icon on the status bar. Figure 5-2. The New Photoshop Project window opens up and lets you select a number of tabs for your project. You'll create your file system layout with these tabs; they are described on All Photos and Layouts. Your new Photoshop document opens to the main window (see Figure 5-3; the top half of the window remains grayed out until you create a first layer). Any time you see the "new document" icon, click it to start a new project. When you click that icon, press Ctrl+N (⌘-N) to create a new project with the current settings. After the project's name is displayed on the title bar, the "New Photoshop Project" dialog opens; you'll use it to set up the document's structure. Figure 5-3. The first thing that appears when you create a new Photoshop project is the main window. It serves as the page for the project, and it also shows you the status of the project.
