Aleo Flash Intro Banner Maker.Q: Differentiating between the value of  $sx$  and the value of  $sy$ ? I have been struggling a bit with this question. The question is as follows: For the family of linear congruential pseudorandom number generators with characteristic polynomials  $sx^2 - x + a$  for some  $a \in \mathbb{Z}$  where  $s$  is the parameter and  $p(x)$  is a prime in  $[2, 10^4]$ , find a method for deriving the value of  $a$  that yields a truly random set of numbers. This question is a continuation of the question
