Our room electrician told us that a single load resistor lamp in the bathroom has a problem. If he unplugged it we could see a fire. He said to check it out. I don't really understand what causes the problem, what is the problem or why would something get so hot that it can burn you. And then the other thing is that he says that the lamp is halogen and why would a halogen lamp be hot. Any ideas? A: Since I cannot comment nor vote, I'll provide you a comment: if the lamp has a low voltage (around 6V), the color temperature will be high (e.g. in the order of 2000K).
