motorolaidencnsunlockerver70fullversionDavies: The world lost a giant David Davies, the Daily Telegraph's political columnist, has died aged 61 after a long battle with cancer. The Daily Telegraph's political columnist, Davide Davies, has died after a long illness. The political editor of the Daily Telegraph for 25 years, he was the paper's chief political commentator and his columns were much quoted in other newspapers across the country. He began his career at the Guardian and then The Independent and worked for The Times and Daily Mail before joining the Daily Telegraph in 1989. A tribute on the Telegraph's website said: "Davide Davies was a rare talent and his passing will be deeply mourned by all who were privileged to know him. He was a brilliant journalist, a passionate liberal Democrat and a self-deprecating, unflinching critic whose warmth, charm and warmth made him a supremely effective commentator. " He had been fighting cancer for six years and his death came after a 12-month battle.Q: Dynamic resistor for multiple cells in parallel I've taken apart an old broken TI-84 Plus calculator and managed to find some spare parts. I have a bunch of lithium batteries and cells of the following shape: I want to use 6 or 7 of those cells in parallel and attach them to an MCU via a relay board (I've also got tons of diodes lying around). I'm looking for a way to do this without a lot of soldering (to automate things). It seems like resistors in series or parallel may work motorolaidencsunlockerver70fullversion The file does not contain any encryption and should not require password. Can anyone help? A: The error message is because of the ending 0 that appears at the end of the name. Normally the file name endings should be either.exe,.zip,.rar etc or a proper file extension that identifies the file contents like.avi,.mp3,.doc etc. But it's the 0 at the end that won't pass Windows file name validation check. This 0 is because the original file name was generated by a computer, not a human and there are no spaces or punctuation symbols on its end. The human being involved in the making of that file ended up with '00' at the end of the name making it invalid.

This error is common when you create a file with a program on your computer but not with a human being, hence it doesn't contain the spaces and other symbols we use for file name naming. Locklear estate auction fails to hit target Auctions for the locklear estate at Charlton and West Norwood, two A rated estates in Hampshire, failed to reach their expected target. Auctioneers Treasure Coast International set a reserve price of £250,000, but the estate failed to sell when it came up at auction.
The property, which is currently being run by property advisor David Amesbury of Charity Property Services, attracted bidders from as far as Essex and Surrey to attend the public auction. David Amesbury, trustee and agent David Amesbury, trustee and agent of the locklear estate, said: "We aren't officially announcing the results yet, but we are aware that the auction ended with no buyers at auction, so we can assume that the reserve price of £250,000 has not been reached. "There was interest in the auction from potential buyers from many parts of the country, including from London and the South East. We do not have any details of the bidders, but we can confirm that bidders
