With a long history of spewing outrageous, offensive words on a daily basis, it is not surprising to hear Whitlock say this; however, most people do not think that Marines are better than any other branch, but rather that the organization has as much potential to make a difference in the world as any other branch. Whitlock, through the piece (click here to read it), made it apparent that he believes that the Marine Corps can possibly make a difference in the world, just not in the way that the nation's police force has been making a difference. "Somehow, I don't think he got the memo that we were born ready. I think he missed that important Marine Corps-taught lesson: you never, ever, ever want to get into a position where you are outgunned, outnumbered and outmanned. You don't have a prayer of beating the number of armies you'll face, and a lightly armed platoon commander is no match for heavily-armed opponents." This is yet another example of Whitlock's inability to do research on any subject he chooses to talk about. Can we really believe that the military, which has defended American interests in every conflict to date, would ever recognize the Second Amendment as anything less than God's will? Can we believe that Marines would actually be outgunned, outnumbered and outmanned by human beings? And that they would not leave their home state to defend their country on foreign soil? Whitlock then continues by mentioning the numerous instances where Marines have used the M-16 rifle, noting that they are more than capable of doing so. The author then suggests that the M-16 is so versatile and accurate that Marines are better equipped to handle any situation than are the Army and Air Force members, even as he admits that the Marines are not the most technologically advanced. "And really, the only reason to send Marines into the infantry is if the infantry's not up to the job." The third paragraph is where the author truly embarrasses himself and his colleagues at Fox News.
